The Talk has heard that there is a sur veying party in the mountains in the castern part of Marion County, surveying a line for a proposed railroad through the valley, from some point on the Utal. Short Line. They sent to Portland a few days ago for guides to show them through the various passes.

The report of a sale of property at Port Orford to Gould was premature. Negoti-ations have been going on with eastern capitalists for the sale to them of a large water frontage and other property, but it is not yet consummated. The object is to connect Fort Orford, which has a good summer harbor, by rail with the Oregon and California railroad. The railroad newspapers in California, say that California and Oregon railroad, now being extended northward from Redding, will not be completed to the state line if the land grant of the road be declared forfeited by congress. The Central Pacific people, since agreeing the meet the Oregon road at the state line, have made little progress in construction, but appear to be preparing for as and work next season. work next season.

A proposal has been made to the sen ate committee to amend all forfsi ure bills, by providing that all lands singed to be forfeited shall be sold by the conpanies at $125 per acre, and that the com-panies shall have five years to dispose of all of said lands. At the end of five years all land not sold to actual saft ers s to revert to the government. This comprom se is offered on behalf of rairoad exporations affected.

An agent of Sisson & Crocker has been in Port and after Climes: to work on the railroad north of Redding. It is asserted that the C. Nothing, except, perhaps, the love of a sw et young woman, win fire the blo d n i intoricate the reason and enthusiasm of a man, like a hundred dollar gold nagget. He will forget that a quail on toast is better than eleven in the bush; he will sacrifice his business, his quiet social iffe and all its pleasures, sneer at cold and thirst and hunger, defy all kinds of danger, in a word there isn't much a man wan't do to got where hundred dollar nuggets of gold may be picked up as he stroil about.—Standard.

"For 50 years I have heard of nothing but decay, and I have heard of nothing but decay, and I have seen nothing progress," said Macaulay. The remark is applicable to this country. Ever since the war there has been a cry that the country was being ruined by the Republicans, and yet the figures show largely increased wealth, a public debt greatly reduced and peace within our borders. There is a slight lull in business, but when compared with the stagnation of when compared with the stagnation of trade in England, France and Garmany, it is nothing.—Coast Mail.

It is a kind of definition worthy of those who hold that "every man has his price" and that every woman is likewise—but whoever declares such a belief merely affixes a brand to his own forehead, whereby all who c. n understand human nature may know his character at once.—East Portland Vindicator.

Morrison's tariff bill will satisfy nobody who cares about the tar if question. Free traders will reject it because it atterly ignores scientific principles of iscal reform; protectionists will repudite it because it will appear to them as blow aimed at their interests, and independent criticism will fall upon it, both because it is manifestly only a paltry ex-sedient for the presidential year, and because it is a confession on the part of its authors of inability or want of courage to deal with the subject in detail. It is not probable that the bill will become a law, since it can hardly pass the sen ate, even if it passes the house; but the presidential contest will be made upon it all the same.
